Capital Harvest on the Plaza Returns to the Reagan Building May 6

The downtown DC farmer's market returns Fridays with fresh foods and artisanal goods

WASHINGTON, D.C. —Capital Harvest on the Plaza (CHoP) farmer's market reopens Friday, May 6 for its 14th season. The market will offer fresh and seasonal fruits, vegetables, plants, and animal proteins along with a wide variety of locally prepared, specialty foods.

The 26-week-long market will be open Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Woodrow Wilson Plaza at 13th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue NW, through November 18. Marketgoers can shop the seasonal offerings from local farms and food producers, dine al fresco on the plaza and stop by the CHoP information booth to pick up recipes and other resources on living a healthy life.

Coming back strong, the market will host over 25 vendors—a mix of fan favorites and fresh faces. It will also include the return of chef demos from the Reagan Building's events catering team and the community spotlight, which offers nonprofits a table at the market each week.

“As more activity returns to downtown DC, we're excited to reopen Capital Harvest for a 14th season. The market offers a gathering place in the heart of the city where people can access farm-fresh foods and support local businesses,” said John P. Drew, President and CEO of TCMA (A Drew Company), the exclusive manager of Ronald Reagan Building and International Trade Center.

With its convenient location at the Ronald Reagan Building and International Trade Center, CHoP is a popular destination for nearby office workers, tourists, and DC locals. Its mission is to foster a sense of community, stimulate economic development, and improve quality of life by providing local and sustainably sourced foods and products.

Capital Harvest on the Plaza is accessible via Metro through either the Federal Triangle (blue/orange/silver lines) or Metro Center (red/blue/orange/silver lines). Parking is available on-site in the Reagan Building's underground garage. For more information and market updates, visit capitalharvestdc.com.
