Capital Harvest on the Plaza Returns May 3 at the Ronald Reagan Building and International Trade Center
The downtown DC market shifts to Wednesdays for the 2023 season

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 15th season of Capital Harvest on the Plaza (CHoP) market is set to open on Wednesday, May 3 at the Ronald Reagan Building and International Trade Center (RRBITC) in downtown Washington, D.C. This year, the market is shifting to Wednesdays for the convenience of marketgoers.

From May to October, the 26-week-long market will offer a range of fresh and seasonal fruits, vegetables, plants, and proteins, along with a variety of locally prepared specialty foods. The market will feature over 20 vendors.

Visitors can enjoy shopping local producers, sampling foods, watching chef demos from RRBITC's culinary team, and finding information on living a healthy lifestyle at the CHoP information booth.

New this season, on the first Wednesday of each month, CHoP will coincide with Capital Arts Collective, an arts market featuring a curated selection of items by the area's most talented creatives, including everything from jewelry, paintings, candles, custom-designed items, home goods, and more.

John P. Drew, President and CEO of TCMA (A Drew Company), expressed his enthusiasm for the market, saying, "As part of our long-term commitment to the DC community, we're proud to be back for a 15th year. Capital Harvest market offers a gathering place in the heart of the city where people can access fresh foods and support local businesses."

With its convenient location at the Ronald Reagan Building and International Trade Center, CHoP is a popular destination for nearby office workers, tourists, and DC locals. Its mission is to foster a sense of community, stimulate economic development, and improve quality of life by providing local and sustainably sourced foods and products.

Capital Harvest on the Plaza is accessible via Metro through either the Federal Triangle (blue/orange/silver lines) or Metro Center (red/blue/orange/silver lines). Parking is available on-site in RRBITC's underground garage. For more information and market updates, visit capitalharvestdc.com.
